

Your responsibilities and obligations

Sist oppdatert: 07.06.2018

You have an obligation to inform Lånekassen if your circumstances change during your education, e.g. you change or interrupt your education programme.

You have a duty to inform Lånekassen if you:

- interrupt or take a break from your education programme
- change educational institution or change your academic plan
- pay less in tuition fees than you stated on your application
- your residential address or civil status changes

Consequences

A change in circumstances may mean you are entitled to more or less money. If you do not report changes in your circumstances, you may lose money which you are entitled to from Lånekassen. If you have received more money than you are entitled to and do not report changes in circumstances, the consequences may be serious. In the worst case, you may lose your right to support from Lånekassen for a set period or permanently.

If you do not report changes in circumstances or provide incorrect information, Lånekassen may convert your grant to a loan and demand the immediate repayment of support you should not have received. Serious cases will be reported to the police.

What should you do?

What have you done?	What do you need to do?
You have interrupted or taken a break from your education programme	You must inform Lånekassen. You can easily inform us via Dine sider .

You have changed educational institution	You have to submit a new online application
You have changed your academic plan	You must inform Lånekassen. You can easily inform us via Dine sider .
You are paying a different amount in tuition fees than what you stated in your application	You must submit documentation from your educational institution that shows the new amount you have to pay in school fees. If you are going to pay less school fees, an email , fax or letter is enough.
You have moved back in with or away from your parents	You must inform Lånekassen via Dine sider . You must state the date you moved, your new address, and whether or not you will be living with your parents.
Your civil status has changed	You must inform Lånekassen. You can easily inform us via Dine sider .
You have had a child	You should apply for a parent grant and/or provider's supplementary grant
You will receive a letter checking your place of residence	You must respond to the letter (document your living status)
You will receive a letter checking your education abroad last year	You must respond to the letter (document academic progression and paid tuition fees)
You have ended your education abroad	You must send a copy of your documentation proving you have paid school fees and a copy of your transcript

Deadlines

The general deadlines for reporting changes in circumstances are by the end of the period for which you have received support. Lånekassen will not be able to take account of changes in circumstances that are reported later than these dates.

If you interrupt your education programme, you must report this immediately even if the aforementioned deadlines have passed.

Letters you receive from us state a deadline for a response, which is usually 3 weeks. Parent grants have their own application deadline.
